

THE BARS ALL DOWN AGAIN.

The San Francisco Post says:

The lawyers and judges between them have at last done for the Restriction Act. Judge Sawyer, of the United States Circuit Court, decided yesterday that Chinese who have been refused admission to this country have the right of appeal to the United States Supreme Court. The cases before Judge Sawyer were those of Sun Hong and Ty Moy, two Chinese who sought to land on the ground of prior residence. Judge Hoffman, of the District Court, decided, after hearing the evidence, that their claim to having lived here before was fraudulent, and ordered that they be sent back to China. An appeal was taken to the Circuit Court, and Judge Hoffman's decision was affirmed. Thereupon the counsel of the Chinamen gave notice of an appeal to the United States Supreme Court, and Judge Sawyer yesterday decided that the men had an absolute right of appeal to the tribunal of last resort, and that, therefore, he had no discretion. The Chinamen were thereupon released upon bonds, pending the hearing of their appeal by the Supreme Court.

This decision takes down the last vestige of the barrier set up by Congress against Chinese immigration. As the Supreme Court is between two and three years behind its calendar, it is obvious that the Chinamen who come, take an appeal and go free on bonds, have an assurance of unmolested residence here for a long period. In rendering his decision, Judge Sawyer, while regretting that his view of the law left him no other course, suggested a partial remedy. He thought that one of the Justices of the Supreme Court should be empowered to examine the record in such cases and decide whether the appeal is frivolous or not, and be given discretion as to the allowance of the appeal. The suggestion is good.

The Restriction Act having now been practically nullified, it becomes the duty of Congress to so amend it as to cure its legal defects, and to surround and strengthen it by such changes in the laws bearing upon appeals as shall deprive Chinese who have no right to land from perverting the machinery of the courts to their advantage, as they have so far succeeded in doing. The Chinese question becomes again in California the one paramount to all others. It is the duty of the Senators and Representatives of the Pacific States to bestir themselves at once and, with the advice of the best legal talent, set about preparing a bill that will stand the strain of practical working in the courts. Fortunately Congress meets again in a little more than three months. Between now and December the Pacific Coast Congressmen should be able to frame a Restriction Act that would restrict. There need be no doubt, happily, about its passage through Congress. The country knows more about the Chinese question now than it did a few years ago, and the voice of labor has made itself heard imperatively above the sighings of sentiment.

The Enterprise says if Harper's geography is a fair specimen of the new school-books which the State Board of Education have imposed upon our public schools, they certainly have not covered themselves with glory, and are not entitled to the thanks of either parents or children, or those who have to pay for the books. If the book is incorrect in one particular it doubtless is in more, and if this book is incorrect and unsuitable, how do they know that the others are not?

A thirteen-year-old boy in San Francisco wrote a letter to President Cleveland, asking that his sister be given a place in the Mint, so that she might help her mother to support the family. His plea has been granted, and to-day there is enrolled among the employees of the Government Miss Cora Bouya, who owes her position to the simple application of her little brother.

The New York Sun in reply to a request to head a movement for a dissolution of both the old parties says: "Vital differences between Democrats and Republicans forbid the breaking up of the old parties. As to whether Cleveland is a Democrat or Republican, we must wait and see."

The leading Democrats in Washington generally discredit the story of Mr. Tilden's attitude toward the Administration, and, as a rule, they express their opinion that if Mr. Tilden should ask the appointment of a man to office he would be appointed.

AMERICA IN ENGLAND.

The American Exhibition in London Rapidly Gaining in Public Estimation—Interview With the Commissioner-General.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20, 1885.

Business men throughout the United States are manifesting much interest in the American Exhibition which opens in London May 1st, 1886, to continue six months. In the opinions of some of the most prominent manufacturing and importing firms in New York, the Exhibition will afford unequalled facilities for introducing the products of the United States abroad. Mr. John Gilmer Speed, the Commissioner-General, has charge of the work in this country with offices in the Times building in this city. To your correspondent Mr. Speed gave the following information regarding the character and purpose of the exhibition. The American Exhibition in London is to be devoted entirely to the exposition of the resources, products, manufactures and arts of the United States. Its buildings and grounds are situated at Earls' Court, a station on several of the rapid transit lines of London and within easy walking distance of the last residence quarter of the British metropolis. Both by its plan and its location this exhibition recommends itself strongly to the people of the United States. As a means of putting before the people of the Old World the evidences of the vast opportunities offered by this country for the profitable investment of capital it cannot be excelled. For the purpose of showing the natural resources of the various sections of the United States a system of State exhibits like that followed at New Orleans has been adopted. The central locality of London, its immense population, over ten millions of people residing within an hour's travel of the exhibition grounds and the vast number of strangers of all nationalities nightly within its borders will make it a peculiarly advantageous spot for an exhibit which shall so present the resources of a State as to make it evident to capitalists seeking new investments, and emigrants seeking new homes that each can be satisfied within the borders of the State exhibiting. The States that exhibited in New Orleans last Winter have each reached some benefit thereby. How much greater then will be the benefit that will accrue to the State which shall make a complete exhibit of its resources and products at London; the metropolis of the world. The exhibition can be readily divided into two departments, the official or State exhibits, and the private exhibits of business firms. The former are to consist of evidences of natural resources, exhibited for the purpose of immigration and the investment of capital, while the latter will consist of exhibits of manufactured goods made for the purpose of extending private trade. In the former class arrangements have already been made for exhibits from twenty-two States, while regarding the latter class the Director-General is able to announce that applications for space already exceed the most sanguine expectations.

The Grant Family.

Mrs. Grant will go for a short time to the farm of Ulysses. Col. Fred intends to go with his wife to Chicago for a few weeks' stay. He has received a number of invitations to attend the Western Army reunions, and expects to be present at two or three of them during his absence. He will not accept the engineership offered him in Chicago, but will return to New York and he and his wife will live with Mrs. Grant at her New York residence. Mrs. Grant desires to have one of her sons with her to occupy the position of head of the family, and naturally Fred takes that place. Mrs. Sartoris is now in correspondence with her family in England to have her children brought over here. If they consent to let them come, she will remain with her mother. If not, she will go back to England about the 1st of October. Jesse still talks of going into the employ of the railroad company in Turkey, but nothing is settled.

At a banquet given to Farnell, in Dublin, on Monday evening, Mr. Parnell eulogized his followers for their courage and self-denial. He said there was only one thing on their programme—to restore the Irish parliament.

THE GIFT OF REPARTEE.

A Faculty for Saying Smart Things—A Pulverizing Process.

It may fairly, we think, be questioned whether a ready wit be an advantage to its possessor, or the reverse, the temptation to indulge in it at the other's expense being undeniably strong. A man credited with the faculty of saying smart things is not generally popular. We are apt to fight shy of anyone endowed with a sharp tongue, and are naturally disinclined to expose ourselves to the chance of being selected for its butt. It does not, however, necessarily follow that the mere fact of repartee should, as a matter of course, suggest an ill-natured motive on the part of the speaker, although it must be owned in the majority of instances—even in what is more or less appropriately termed the "retort courteous"—a touch of satire is commonly discernible. It is not given to every man to say the right thing at the right moment, and to trust inspiration, with the certainty of not missing the mark, even those who have their answer ready being frequently unable to put it into words. The celebrated Nicole may be cited as a case in point. He thought slowly and expressed himself with difficulty, whereas his friend, M. de Treville, with whom he was constantly in dispute, knew exactly what he meant to say and said it. "I cannot deny," said the moralist, after one of those verbal encounters, in which, as usual, he had been worsted, "that as long as we are in the same room together, M. de Treville has invariably the best of the argument; but it is not less true that before he reaches the bottom of the stairs I have regained the advantage and pulverized him."

Strained Relations.

A New York dispatch says:

State politics are getting decidedly interesting, and are bringing national politics into the scenes. Yesterday the Brooklyn Eagle, a strong, and the only Democratic organ in Kings county, declared that Cleveland is sick of Secretary Manning, who, the Eagle says, was forced on the President as a Cabinet officer against his will. Manning, as the story goes, was made aware of this soon after his appointment and wrote out his resignation immediately. By the advice of friends it was withheld, but he then announced he would not be a Cabinet officer for more than six months. The Eagle says the relations between Cleveland and Manning now are very much strained. Yesterday's Mail and Express reports, on what it regards as the best Democratic authority, that the relations between the President and Tilden are absolutely ruptured. Cleveland, on his way to the Adirondacks, stopped at Yonkers, but was told that Tilden could not see him, and he therefore proceeded to Albany. Manning was sent to Tilden to see what was the matter, and he, too, was snubbed.

The Austin Reville remarks: The Reno JOURNAL is running a map daily which goes to show that Reno is the center of creation. Reno is represented like a checker board, while Sacramento, Virginia City and other villages are represented by fly specks.

Vice President Hendricks says he never took any part in the abuse of President Hayes, because he came to the office in the proper pursuance of the law.

WATER RIGHTS.

Directions for Locating in This State.

A person or corporation desiring to appropriate water must post a notice in writing in a conspicuous place at the point of intended diversion, stated:

First—That he claims the water to the extent of ——— miners' inches measuring under a four inch pressure. One miners' inch equals 17 gallons per minute.

Second—State the purposes for which it is claimed, and the place of intended use.

Third—State means by which it is to be divided and the size of the flume, ditch, pipe or aqueduct.

A copy of the notice must, within ten days after it is posted, be recorded in the office of the Recorder of the county in which it is posted.

Within sixty days after the notice is posted the claimant must commence the construction of the work in which he intends to divert the water, and must prosecute the work diligently and uninterruptedly to completion, unless temporarily interrupted by the rain or snow. A failure to comply with such rules deprives the claimant of the right to use the water against a subsequent claimant who complies therewith.

The President's Quietude.

A World's Au Sable Forks, N. Y., special says: President Cleveland is now camping out at Willis' Pond, one of the most inaccessible spots in the Adirondack mountains, being a good three days' journey from the nearest railroad depot. The President was ill for the first few days, but is now looking well. He generally fishes during the day and in the evening enjoys a social game of euchre. The President wishes to avoid newspaper correspondence, and declines to converse with any one on anything but personal and general matters, and cannot be induced to speak about politics. He says he has not yet decided when he will return to Washington City. Stopping at the Prospect House is a young lady who has evinced most lively interest in the President since he has been in this region, and it is said he shows a marked liking for her society.

The principal of the Reno Public School requests all pupils belonging to the Primary, Intermediate and Grammar grades, who were absent from the examinations for promotion at the close of the last term, to meet him at the High School building at 9 o'clock A. M. Friday, Aug. 28, for examination.

The election of teachers for the Reno public schools have resulted as follows: Orris Ring, principal; Miss Farmer, assistant principal; Mrs. Alf Doten, first grammar; Mrs. Knowlton, second grammar; Miss Bersor, third intermediate; Misses Turner, Northrop, McNealey, Michelson and Grippen will fill the other positions. School opens next Monday.

The "Big Three."

From the last issue of the Northern Picket the JOURNAL excerpts the annexed:

The "Big 3" of Modoc, composed of Messrs. Calderwood, Randall and Wimer, will make their initial bow before an Alturas audience in their various roles, entirely of their own creation. Mr. J. E. Calderwood, the great eccentric comedian, will appear in his versatile song and dance, entitled "I'll Wait 'til the Clouds Roll By;" in this act alone he stands unrivaled. Mr. Randall, the well-known deep-voiced basso profundo, will render, with marvelous sweetness and execution, Handel's symphony in D minor: "Only to Cell Thee Mine," and by special request Kunkel's "Old Sexton." Mr. Wimer takes extensive strides in tragedy, and in consequence will execute, with a powerful support, Bowker's Francesca di Rimini, after which he will appear in a double song and dance with Mr. Randall called: "What Will You Take?" and as this show takes place at Gaby & Wimer's don't deny yourself a delicious drink of their fine old rye and imported brands of liquors, while listening to the cultured voices of the above noted vocalists.

Nevada Theater.

On Friday, September 4th, Kate Castleton, supported by a first-class company of comedians, will appear at the theater in the musical extravaganza, "The Crazy Patch." The piece had a long and prosperous run at the Standard Theater lately, and is spoken of by the Bay papers unanimously in the highest terms of praise. It is one of Gunther's best productions and one of the few pieces of that character which can be seen any number of times without tiring an audience. It is replete with musical and operatic gems and perfect in its peculiar cast. We copy the following from the San Franciscoan: The Standard Theater has in "The Crazy Patch" a funny play that is funny. Both the play and the acting are essentially humorous. Put on the stage without flourish of trumpets or as "the great Eastern success," and almost entirely by local actors, it is one of the most taking of the avowedly humorous performances we have had. Miss Castleton's Sybilla Tibbs, though marked by many of that artist's somewhat exaggerated peculiarities, is neat, prettily dressed, lively and pleasing. J. N. Long is better fitted to a sustained part than to a play requiring any display of specialities, and he has the only character in the play not especially calling for such gifts. As Dr. Arthur Sullivan, he makes his suffering under the poetic justice dealt out to him (in large doses) by an escaped lunatic patient of his, very amusing to everybody else, if not to himself. Girard exhibits many of his popular specialities as Policeman McGlue. W. S. Russell, as the escaped lunatic William Smith, is one of the best and most strongly marked characters in this funny performance. The box sheet is now open at the Postoffice, where reserved seats can be obtained without extra charge.

"THE HOUSEKEEPER."

The "Housekeeper" for August is an unusually good number. The leading articles are "How Six Girls Made Money," No. 4 of the "Behavior Papers," which is devoted to bashful boys, and a very full and interesting chapter on "House Building" which shows how the new house was made out of the old one. The "Housekeeper" is usually full, and a larger installment of prize recipes is given. The publishers of "The Housekeeper" are offering some beautiful floral premiums, among them two beautiful Tea Roses, and a new choice Lily. "The Lily of Purity" much more beautiful than the Easter Lily, each bulb producing forty or fifty flowers in a season. Send for specimen copy and full particulars. To get these choice floral premiums it is necessary to subscribe before October 1st, 1885. Address Buckeye Publishing Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

Agricultural.

It is very important to plow barley stubble where wheat is to be sown as quickly as possible after the barley crop is off unless this is done the advantage in sowing wheat after barley is little over sowing it after an oat crop.

In a good crop of wheat the grain gives nearly or quite as much weight as the straw. With oats and barley the grain is usually in excess of the straw so far as weight is concerned. In the rye crop straw weighs more than grain, and near a good market is often worth more.

It is a good thing to have plenty of help in drawing grain or hay. An advantage may often be secured by drawing in grain with two wagons and if possible with two teams. This is especially important where grain is stacked, as it is unprotected until the stack is completed.

A Difference.

The Enterprise, of Wednesday, says: The property belonging to the estate of Sarah J. Cooper sold at administrator's sale yesterday at very cheap rates. The large three-story and mansard roof lodging-house, which cost $10,000 originally, was bought by A. L. Edwards for $480. The large three-story dwelling-house was bought for $410 by Henry Smith, and the third house for $200 by E. Lauzon. The blacksmith shop was sold for $165 to Bart Burke. The original cost of the buildings alone, without the lots, was $20,000, but the whole sold yesterday for $1,235.

A Straw.

The Washington Post says that Lawrence Barrett's Q street property has been sold by that gentleman to John Mackay, the Bonanza king of Nevada, Mr. Barrett having changed his mind as to building a residence on the lot.

Aurora Mining District.

The Free Lance says:

In contrast with the palmy days of Aurora, when she contained eight or ten thousand inhabitants, at the present time all told, the town does not contain more than seventy-five persons. The court house is locked and barred, and is fast becoming ancient ruins. Large brick buildings two stories high are fastened as tight, as if hermetically sealed, by heavy iron doors closed by day and by night waiting for Aurora, the goddess of morning with her rosy fingers, to shed refulgent light into those mining regions. Just now the eastern horizon seems to be growing brighter, and the watch word already is being passed from lip to lip that the morning dawneth.

The $19,000,000 that has been taken from the mines is not forgotten. The report has gone across the waters and reached London. An English company there is now considering the proposition made by Messrs. H. M. Yerington, H. G. Blasdel and George Conlter, and it is expected will give their final answer by the fifteenth of September next. Just at what price it is not known, but the owners have all combined and have offered to sell to this company the Del Monte, a combination of ten claims, the Julietta, Humboldt, New Esmeralda and other mines. The latest news is to the effect that the company will accept the proposition, and that a large number of men will soon be put to work.

Of the so-called outside claims, the Antelope, owned by Judge Sewell, of Nevada, and Judge McKinstry, of California, is said to be looking well. Messrs. Shultz and Donahue are now taking out some very rich ore from the Bright Star. The Grand Trunk mine, owned by Justice Field, Colonel A. C. Ellis, Mr. Neidy and others, has just been leased to Carson parties, and a force of men will at once be put to work. A rich streak of gold ore two feet wide in the ledge was struck which contains free gold and which assays about $100 per ton. The last ore from this mine yielded $13 and there is now about 40 tons of ore of the same quality on the dump. This mine has cost the company in making development, a great many thousands of dollars, and is still a great pet with Justice Field and Colonel Ellis.

WHITE HOUSE PLEASANTIES—When President Cleveland was asked to appoint Judge Tree to a foreign mission, he replied:

"I'd just as lief as not."

This gracious answer to the application was received with a profound bough.

"In making this appointment however," continued the Chief Magistrate, "it is not to be considered by any branches of the Judge's family that they have only to apply for a position to be appointed."

"Certainly knot," was the response.

"Then, I guess, you can tell Judge Tree to pack his trunk," said the President. "You expected me, of course, to appoint him," he added.

"We knew you would," was the reply.

"Well," said the President, "I was aware that Judge Tree did not pine for the office, nevertheless in such a position I am anxious to see, as our English friends would say, a good man at the 'elm, and while I'm maple—"

"Cheer up!" exclaimed the delegation in a breath. Then the President retired to his desk with a pleasant smile on his face, and the delegation departed, well pleased with the success of their mission.—Boston Courier.
